

Located in the historic center of Bethany, the Edna L. Delano Nature Sanctuary and Rodell's Roost for Robins offer hikers a short but interesting walk in the woods right next to Amity Road (Route 63).

The Delano Sanctuary was given to the Bethany Land Trust in 1996 by Hubert and William Delano. It is named in honor of their mother, Edna Delano, who lived for many years in the Lysias Beecher House to the north side of the property. The Beecher House, built in 1762, is one of the oldest homes in Bethany.

Rodell's Roost was given to the Land Trust in 1999 by Janet Rodell, her stepson Michael Rodell, and his wife Taffy. It borders the western side of the Delano Sanctuary, with trails leading to the Bethany Community School and out to Falls Road. Today, these two adjoining properties provide hikers a fully wooded, natural wonderland right next to Bethany's busiest road. Built by Eagle Scout volunteers, the trails work their way up a small hillside, from which seasonal views are possible.

Looking across Amity Road from the Delano Sanctuary, visitors can see the Clark Memorial Library, the Episcopal Church and the Bethany Historical Society. To the south is the Congregational Church and the historic Carriage Shed, where parishioners left their horses and carriages while attending services across the street.
